Neuton italic 1+2

(uppercase is still in progress)

Italic 2

peak to us, my dear Ralph," whispered Jack, tenderly, "are you better now?"

I smiled and looked up, saying, "Better; why, what do you mean, Jack? I'm quite well."

en what are you shamming for, and frightening us in this way?" eterkin, smiling through his tears; for the poor boy had been really the impression that I was dying.

w raised myself on my elbow, and putting my hand to my ad, found that it had been cut pretty severely, and that I had lost a deal of blood.

ne, come, Ralph," said Jack, pressing me gently backward, "lie my boy; you're not right yet. Wet your lips with this water, it's nd clear as crystal. I got it from a spring close at hand. There now, say a word, hold your tongue," said he, seeing me about to speak. I you all about it, but you must not utter a syllable till you have well."

don't stop him from speaking, Jack," said Peterkin, who, now that ars for my safety were removed, busied himself in erecting a shelter ken branches in order to protect me from the wind; which, er, was almost unnecessary, for the rock beside which I had been empletely broke the force of the gale. "Let him speak, Jack; it's a ret to hear that he's alive, after lying there stiff and white and sulky whole hour, just like an Egyptian mummy. Never saw such a fellow are, Ralph; always up to mischief. You've almost knocked out all the and more than half choked me, and now you go shamming It's very wicked of you, indeed it is."

Italic 1

peak to us, my dear Ralph," whispered Jack, tenderly, "are better now?"

I smiled and looked up, saying, "Better; why, what do y mean, Jack? I'm quite well."

"Then what are you shamming for, and frightening us in this way."
Peterkin, smiling through his tears; for the poor boy had been reall, the impression that I was dying.

I now raised myself on my elbow, and putting my hand to my f found that it had been cut pretty severely, and that I had lost a go of blood.

"Come, come, Ralph," said Jack, pressing me gently backward, "limy boy; you're not right yet. Wet your lips with this water, it's cocclear as crystal. I got it from a spring close at hand. There now, do a word, hold your tongue," said he, seeing me about to speak. "I'll all about it, but you must not utter a syllable till you have rested

"Oh! don't stop him from speaking, Jack," said Peterkin, who, not his fears for my safety were removed, busied himself in erecting a stroken branches in order to protect me from the wind; which, hower almost unnecessary, for the rock beside which I had been laid composed the force of the gale. "Let him speak, Jack; it's a comfort to he's alive, after lying there stiff and white and sulky for a whole he like an Egyptian mummy. Never saw such a fellow as you are, Ral always up to mischief. You've almost knocked out all my teeth and than half choked me, and now you go shamming dead! It's very we you, indeed it is."

Text from Coral Island by R.M. Ballantyne, 1825-1894

nmuihjlrtabpdqoecgs wzkvyx • nmuihjlrtabpd qoecgswzkvyx